This Week's PICTURE SHOW—AP Newsfeatures.

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Fifty feet under ground or 50,000 feet above, somebody is always minding the store at Strategic Air Command Hdqtrs. at Offutt AFB just south of here.

In SAC's famed command post, three floors below ground, a virtual city exists under a concrete roof thick enough to protect it against all but a direct hit by a nuclear bomb. Within this underground city is the nerve center controlling 80 to 90 per cent of the free world's striking power. In time of war it could be sealed off against airborne contamination and occupants could safely live and work for weeks.

In the event this command post with its world renowned red alert telephone should fail or contact with it should be lost, control of the SAC bomber and missile force immediately shifts to "Looking Glass." That is the code name for a fleet of modified KC-135 tankers, at least one of which has been constantly airborne since Feb. 3, 1961.

Each modified tanker carries a general officer and staff ready to assume command of the SAC arsenal if the need arises. Other command posts are located at several SAC bases in the U.S.

All are linked to some 50 bases throughout the world which can respond instantly to presidential order. Instant contact is possible even with individual planes in flight.

Subject to this intricate command system are more than 600 B-52 bombers, some 600 KC-135 tankers and 80 B-58 Hustler supersonic bombers, plus an arsenal of intercontinental and airborne missiles.

By fiscal 1970 SAC will begin receiving new FB-111 bombers designed to replace the aging B-52. The FB-111 can fly twice the speed of sound and carry both nuclear and conventional weapons.

SAC's missile force consists of some 54 Titan II and 1,000 Minuteman missiles, rapid firing silo-launched projectiles of the 6,000-mile range.

Much of SAC's intricate communications system is devoted to making certain this awesome striking power is not turned loose by accident.

"Positive Control," as it is called, begins with the President and is authenticated at several levels of command down to the individual aircraft flying toward a target thousands of miles from any SAC command post. So precise is this system that if a single link in the "go code" fails, the bomber will turn away from its target.

"Peace," says a signboard at SAC base, "is our profession."

Television and Radio

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A game people play at the top of the TV ladder is called "trade-out."

It goes like this: Johnny guest-stars in a Lucy episode; Lucy appears in a Carson special. Carol frolics in a Nabors hour; Jim is the very special guest on a Burnett show.

The device is a simple swap deal, no money is involved, and it can only be played by TV VIPs, usually with a stake in their own shows. Thus, it has become something of a status symbol.

But there are dangers. Too much can bore the audience by over-exposing the superstars, and those extra jobs can wear down a star already toiling long hours on his weekly show. Andy Williams, with a new variety show coming up, recently publicly kicked over the traces and declared that except for real top-drawer talent he was not interested in trading guest-shots.

The practice makes economic sense, however, since it helps hold down budgets while big stars help build higher Nielsen ratings. Performers, agents have adopted the device and more than one star of his own special during the coming season wangled it by collecting enough promissory notes to round up a really star-studded cast for a salable one-shot.

But even if a performer can't play the game, television's financial rewards are considerable. Many, if not most, variety and dramatic shows hold to a top guest-star price of $7,500.

"When a variety show is forced to pay $10,000 or more, it's got to be a secret deal," said a producer of variety hours. "Agents can only negotiate successfully from strength. The price can range from $1,500 for someone who is eager for prime-time exposure. Most Las Vegas comics get $2,500 to $3,000. A class B performer would rate about $5,000."

The dramatic shows also like to top out at $7,500. Producers are reluctant to talk about pay schedules because every agent would demand tops for his client. It is reliably reported, however, that "The Virginian" has a $5,000 top while "The Name of the Game" sweetens the pot a bit more. Some shows with lower budgets use lesser luminaries for $2,000 to $2,500 per episode.

NEA's Youth Beat

THE NATIONAL REPORT ON WHAT'S HAPPENING

SEMIPERMANENT HAIR COLORING: Teens' move toward less-than-permanent hair coloring is gaining strength in many markets. The products have improved from yesteryear's versions. Some claim 10-minute, ready-for-use, nothing-to-add convenience. Also claim "won't rub off." Big problem is that the products frequently don't deliver a totally new look; work best as a toner for dull or already lightened hair.

COUGH SYRUPS hang-up: Alcoholic/narcotic cough syrups are becoming a major teen problem. The presence of narcotics such as codeine phosphate in heretofore nonprescription items has created a monster for the drug abuse control authorities. One of control problems is that many products are available off the shelves of supermarkets and discount centers. Pharmacists are restricting sales to adult-only customers and measures are being taken state by state to restrict such products to prescription only.

HAIR TIED TO THE ARTS: Interrelationship of long hair to civil rights and Vietnam being claimed as direct line to what is happening in "the arts." Claim being advanced that the environment being built by modern art causes young people to see themselves in an "era of tremendous possibilities with more choices than any generation has had before . . . rather than being victimized by technology." Too bad the words and thoughts are so far away from fact.

LICENSED PHARMACIES: Sen. Thomas Dodd has introduced a comprehensive and dangerous drug control bill to U.S. Senate. Nixon support anticipated. Will license manufacturers and distributors of narcotics and other controlled drugs such as stimulants and depressants. Pharmacies will be licensed if they are authorized to dispense under state law. Covered drugs to be divided into three categories: narcotics, dangerous drugs with high potential for abuse and established medical use and those with "low" potential of abuse and current accepted medical use. A large problem remains in the form of bootleg manufacture and sale. The marijuana scene is not clearly related and still dangles like an albatross around and over the heads of law enforcement agencies.

BOOKLETS FOR PARENTS: Even Blue Cross is into the act of "what did we do wrong?" Aimed at gaining a perspective on adolescents, a 15-essay series is itself called "Adolescence for Adults." Interesting observation on part of one critic deals with the relationship of adult adolescence to the opposition to "family life education" in public schools.

ONCE AROUND the garden team: President Nixon's recent speech at a small, socially uncomplicated Dakota college intelligently underlined the fact that teen country hasn't gone completely beserk. Wire service item on a Vermont high school track team using their running track as a summer garden is another example of solid Americana at work. The track team will tend the garden and sell the produce to buy uniforms for next season. The item was far from front page in major newspapers.

PISTOL PACKIN' PAPA
Dear Helen: My parents would not let me date until I was 17, and then they put big restrictions on me. I could never stay to the end of a dance or see the last of a movie, because I had to be home by 11:30 even on Saturday nights. Now that I'm 19, I still have to be in before midnight. And then submit to a grilling, as if I were a kid, and not working full time.

The other evening we had a flat tire and I wasn't anywhere near a telephone. When my boy friend brought me home at 12:30, my Dad wasn't home. Mom said he was out looking for mel.

He came back about fifteen minutes later and, Helen, you won't believe this, but he was carrying his gun. If he had found me and the boy, no telling what he might have done.

My parents are insisting that I get a physical examination, as they are sure "the worst" happened.

I can swear it didn't, but if this keeps up, I'm going to leave. Do you blame me? These are just a few examples. I could tell you worse. JAILLED IN.

Dear J.L.: I can't blame you for wanting to break jail. A girl of 19, with a full time job, is ready for her own apartment. Start looking!—H.

Dear Helen: Don't you think 15 is old enough to have casual dates with boys, like meet them at chaperoned dances, and have them over to see you? My folks won't agree with you, but I wish you'd say so anyway. —CANT CONVINCE THEM.

Cear C.C.T.: Consider it said. And I hope your folks soon agree with mel—H.

Dear Helen: I haven't seen much from adopted children in your column. I'm 17, and I have a wonderful family. I'm so grateful they chose me.

When I was young, my mother cut out a poem in the paper which reads as follows:
Not flesh of my flesh,
Not bone of my bone,
But still miraculously my own,
I'll never forget for a single minute,
You didn't grow under my

Guidelines for Funerals

DETROIT (AP) — Liberalized funeral guidelines for the Archdiocese of Detroit were announced today by John Cardinal Dearden.

The guidelines allow full Catholic burial ceremonies in most instances to members of Catholic families, nonpracticing Catholics, Catholics who married improperly and suicides.

In the past, such persons often were denied full funeral rites of the church.

It will now be standard practice to provide everyone with a rosary service on the day before the funeral, a funeral mass or service at the funeral home and a graveside service.

Cardinal Dearden acted on the recommendation of the 25 vicars of the archdiocese.

Just wishing you were as wealthy as somebody else really isn't doing much about it.

One of the best ways to save for the future is to let the rest of the world go by.

Marriages Can Founders On Money-Woes Shoals

By CARLTON SMITH and RICHARD PUTNAM PRATT

Many a marriage has foundered on the rocks and shoals of financial troubles. Not that "enough money" by itself will ever do anything for a marriage that lacks the essential ingredients, but there's also some hard truth in the old saying: "When poverty comes in the door, love flies out the window." The kind of relative poverty that results from mismanagement of the family finances can be disastrous to domestic tranquility, as any family or marriage counselor can testify. Some of the basic rules for avoiding disaster are contained in a booklet, "Money and Your Marriage," by a trio of Ph.D.s, all recognized authorities in the fields of family financial or marriage counseling.

Pratt Smith

Failure to identify and make plans around the family's long-range goals is one of the commonest causes of financial trouble, the three authorities agree in the booklet published by the National Consumer Finance Association.

If you've "only thought ahead to the steak you'd like for dinner tonight . . . or to the football game next weekend . . . or, at most, to the car you'll buy as soon as the new models are out," you may enjoy such carefree living for awhile, say the authors, "but time has a sinister way of catching up with you."

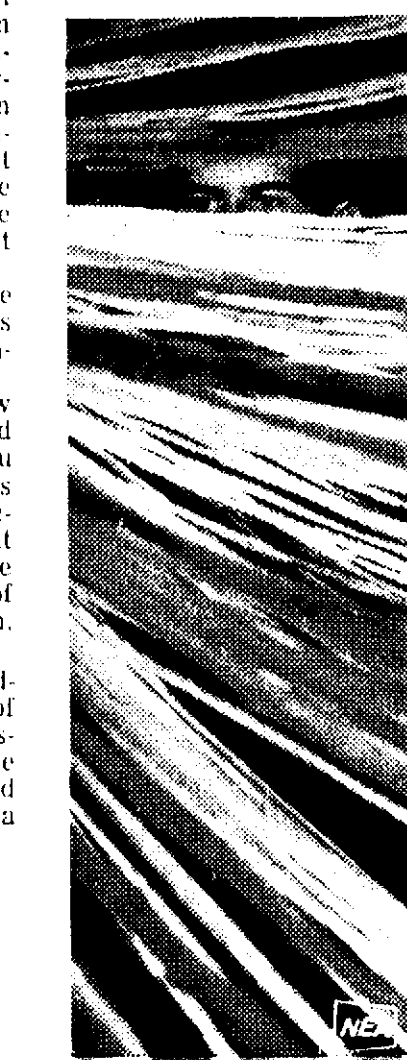

In a checklist to help the family sort out its values and goals, the authors include:

- The family itself: How many children make "a good family" for you? Are you ready for the responsibilities of parenthood, and the sacrifices it may call for? What kind of life do you value most of all, in terms of home, career, education, personal enjoyment?
- Career: Is the breadwinner doing the kind of work that gives him satisfaction and makes best use of his abilities? Or should the family plan toward a change for the better?

- Home: Are you living now under the room where you want to raise your family? If not, are your financial plans geared—realistically—to your goals of home ownership?
- Education: The future of young couples may suffer unless they can agree to postpone certain spending until education is completed. The advanced training necessary for career advancement may have to be balanced against present pleasures. And including, in the family's financial planning, the kinds of adult education that can enrich the enjoyment of life or develop new skills and interests, may be an important factor in marriage success.
- Recreation: Hobbies, sports, travel or other recreational activities that make leisure time something you look forward to and enjoy actively—not just passively—are important in cementing the family together, and making life something besides an endless succession of days devoted to earning a living. Deciding on what things give deepest and most lasting enjoyment, and the financial planning that makes them possible, are another key to marriage success.
- Future security: Are you making any provisions for it?
- Personal development: What kind of person do you hope to become—and are you doing anything about it or just taking life as it comes?

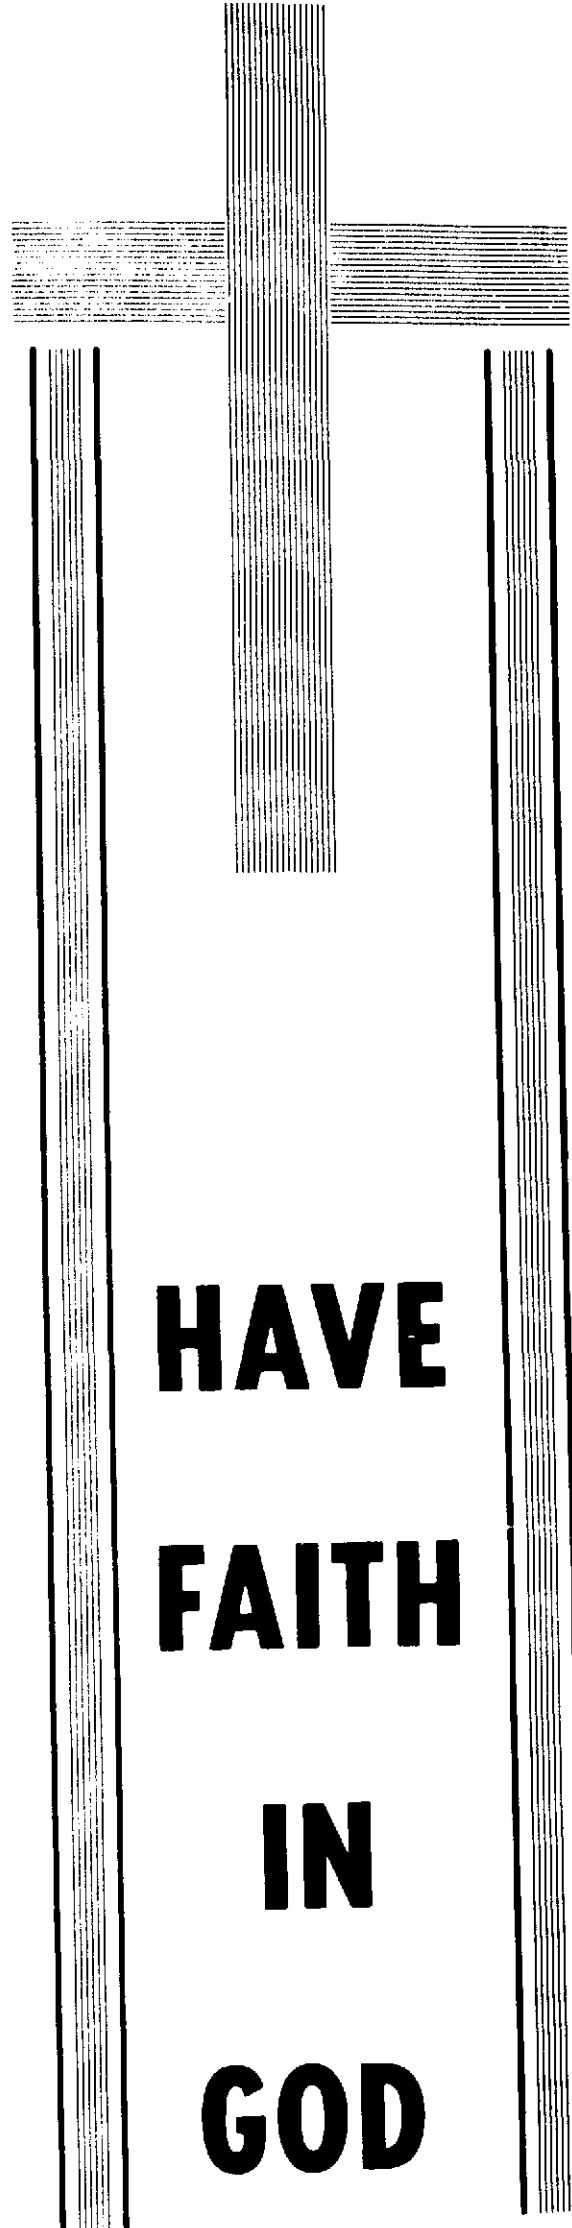

Sort out these goals, say the three authors, and good, sound management of family finances will just about take care of itself. If you know what you really want, and want it badly enough, you'll gear family spending to what's important. (Newspaper Enterprise Ass'n.)

My Psalm

The clinched fist and the hesitating step show the danger which doubtless has caused this heart to throb. But the face is lighted by the silver lining and hope and trust will drive out the fear.

Every man walks, some day, through the valley of the shadow, along a dangerous path. Suffering and opposition and uncertainty are our common lot. But God is our shepherd and no matter how unequal we feel, He will carry us through. His rod and staff must be our comfort for "My Psalm" says so. And if He walks with us through the valley, every darkness will give way to light. His church is on the corner to help us. The Book on its pulpit will give us direction. The faithful company, the anointed which My Psalm talks about, will be as His rod that drives away our foes. Then, surely, we shall not walk alone for goodness and mercy shall follow us and we shall dwell in the house of the Lord forever. Amen.

Robinson, Powell Key to Victory

By HAL BOCK

Associated Press Sports Writer
Boog Powell's flying legs and Al Downing's suddenly-strong
the race between Minnesota and Oakland at the top of the American League's West Division.

Powell stole a base—his first of the season—forcing Twins' Manager Billy Martin to waste a 1-2 count on Brooks Robinson and walk him instead in the ninth inning Friday night. Dave Johnson followed with the sacrifice fly that gave the Orioles a comeback 6-5 victory over the Twins.

Downing, rescued from the pitching scrap heap, responded with a four-hit shutout, pitching the Yankees' past Oakland 5-0 in the second game of a twin-night doubleheader after the A's had rallied to take the opener 5-3 in 10 innings.

Oakland's split and the Twins' loss left the A's 1½ games off Minnesota's pace in the tight West race.

Elsewhere in the American League, Washington walloped Seattle 10-3, California edged Boston 7-6, Cleveland dropped Kansas City 7-4 and Detroit swept a doubleheader from Chicago, 7-3 and 9-7.

In the National League, New York split with Atlanta, winning 4-1 before losing 1-0 in 10 innings; Cincinnati bombed Philadelphia 12-5; Houston trimmed Montreal 5-2; Los Angeles shut out Chicago 5-0; St. Louis edged San Francisco 4-3, and Pittsburgh whipped San Diego 7-1.

Minnesota carried a 5-2 lead into the ninth against the Orioles but Andy Etchebarren opened with a single and one out later, Don Buford also singled. Paul Blair walked to load the bases and Frank Robinson singled two runs home.

Powell followed with another single, tying the score and sending Frank Robinson to third. Then, with a 1-1 count on Brooks Robinson, Powell took off for second and stole the base on the second strike.

Martin decided to waste the 1-2 count and walk Robinson intentionally to set up the possible double play. A sacrifice fly crossed the strategy and won it for the Orioles.

Downing, burdened by arm trouble for most of the last season allowed only four singles. It was only his second start of the year and he was locked in a scoreless duel with Jim "Catfish" Hunter until the seventh.

Then Horace Clarke poked a two-run single to put New York on top and rookie catcher Thurmon Munson, who had his first major league hit in the seventh, singled two more across in the next inning.

Oakland tied the opener in the ninth inning on a pinch double by Ted Kubiak and won it an inning later with singles by Rick Monday, Dick Green and Bert Campaneris and Larry Haney's double.

Washington, packed 10 runs into the sixth and seventh innings to thump Seattle. Hank Allen had three hits for the Senators, who roared from behind with four runs in the sixth inning and six more in the seventh.

Aurelio Rodriguez doubled home two runs in the ninth inning, pulling California past Boston. Jim Fregosi opened the inning with a single and Bubba Morton walked in front of Rodriguez' hit. Carl Yastrzemski tagged his 30th homer and the Red Sox carried a 6-5 lead into the ninth.

Duke Sims, given a second chance when third baseman Paul Schaal dropped his pop foul, unloaded a three-run first inning homer that started Cleveland toward its victory over Kansas City. Joe Foy homered for the Royals.

Willie Horton hammered a three-run homer in the first inning and Bill Freehan chased home two more with a triple in the third, moving Detroit past Chicago in the first game of their doubleheader.

Tom Tresh's three-run homer in the eighth inning decided the nightcap.

Narrow Escape
President John Tyler narrowly escaped death when a big gun exploded while he was aboard the USS Princeton during an inspection of the ship. The secretary of state, the secretary of the Navy and three other officials were killed.

Minor League Crisis:

By MARTY RALBOVSKY

NEA Sports Writer

BUFFALO, N.Y.—(NEA)—It was the opinion of many people that the art of luring fans to minor league baseball games reached a new low last summer when, in a place called Pittsfield, Mass., home-team management staged a hog-calling contest.

One-half hour before the start of an Eastern League game there, players claiming any semblance of rural upbringing were lined up along the first base line, their so-eees at the ready. The hogs, however, emitting disinterested snorts of their own, clustered together in centerfield and refused to budge.

Undaunted, management proclaimed the night a howling success, anyway. As groundskeepers scurried about in centerfield, doing emergency clean-up work, a club official proudly stated, "We gotta have more of this stuff. There were 348 paid admissions tonight."

Such is the condition, ludicrous as it may seem, of minor league baseball today. Even the most solid of minor league cities are resorting to gimmickry as the specter of financial insolvency closes in. Here in Buffalo, where minor league ball has been played continuously for 92 years, home games are no longer billed as simply, Buffalo vs. Rochester, or Rochester, or Syracuse.

Instead, it's either Barber Night, Soup Night, Kite Night or, deliver us, Four-Leg Clover Night.

The gimmicks are usually conceived in the fertile minds of men like Joe Morrison, who is general manager, publicity director and chief pitcher for the Buffalo Bisons. He says he doesn't enjoy dreaming up the promotional gimmicks (he calls them extravaganzas, naturally) but he has no other choice.

"Minor league baseball is fighting a losing battle," he says. "Big-league expansion, television sports and all those summertime attractions are killing us. So we've got to resort to gimmicks to get people to come out. People want something for nothing, anyway, so we try and make them think they're getting just that."

Some of Morrison's gimmicks, he admits, are enough to make even Max Patkin scowl. For example:

• Barber Night: "I lined up this hippie, with hair growing down his back, and offered him a few bucks. Then I got hold of a barber friend of mine. We pulled a chair out of his shop, set it up at home plate, and sat the hippie in it. Then the barber gave him a crew cut. The crowd ate it up."

• Pony Night: "This is always a laugh. The kids come out in droves, hoping like hell to win the pony. But their parents just sit there, squirming in their seats, hoping like hell their kid doesn't win."

• Kite Night: "A local radio station donates 200 kites and we give 'em away to the first 200 kids. Then we turn 'em loose on the field. God, what a mess. The worst part of all is getting the kids and the kites off the field so the game can start."

One of Morrison's best gimmicks, he admits, happened by accident when the Bisons were forced to move most of their home games to Niagara Falls (he says the Buffalo park is located in a potentially troublesome area). Outside the Niagara Falls park is a large, city-owned swimming pool.

"Every time a batter fouls off a pitch," says Morrison, "it lands in the pool. So I hired this shapely chick, put her in a bikini, and told her to sit up on the lifeguard stand. Whenever a foul ball lands in the water, her job is to dive in and retrieve it."

"The gimmick is, whenever a player fouls one off, the public address announcer says, 'Splash!' And all the guys run up to the top row of the stands and watch this chick dive after it. It's really great when somebody fouls off three or four in a row."

The traditional department of Colorado mining towns being what it was—rowdy—it seems only natural that Jack Dempsey should have been born in Manassa and raised in Montrose.

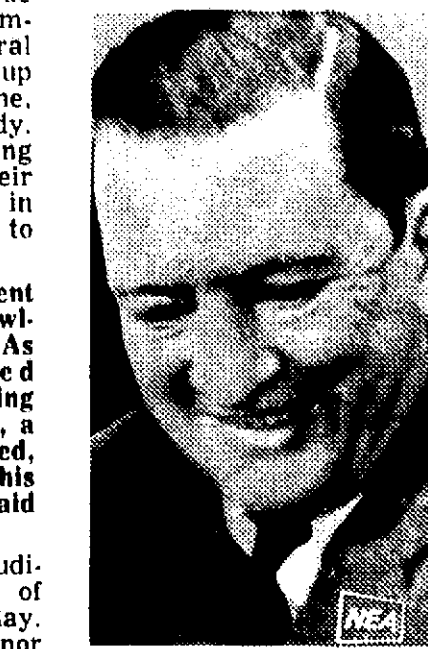

Montrose's department was as traditional as that of Cripple Creek, where prospectors brawled in the streets or that of Black Hawk, where men sometimes found it necessary to shoot one another. "Everybody fought," Jack Dempsey recalls. "In the streets, saloons, dance halls, anywhere. A fellow grew up fighting."

It has been that Dempsey's career began shortly after he quit school in the eighth grade and went to work as a mucker in a copper mine. "One day in the pits a 200-pound bully threw dirt in Jack's face," says Mario DeMarco in his book, "Great American Athletes."

In a few seconds the bully was laid out by the smaller and younger lad, thus starting one of the greatest of all boxing careers.

Must a Pro Grid Owner Be Nutty?

Ira Berkow
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—In some cases, the only way to get into a pro football game is to wait around for a gnarled hant to die and will you her season pass. The impression, for those who do get into games and stand squashed by crowds and are frozen by climate, is that owners of pro football clubs are the wealthiest guys this side of the Tundra.

The impression is misleading: "We project," said K. S. (Bud) Adams Jr., owner of the Houston Oilers, "that it will take five additional seasons of complete sell-outs to regain the loss sustained in the prior (and first) eight years of the Oilers."

"Financial rewards to be gained by ownership of a professional football team are relatively small," said Dan Reeves, Los Angeles Rams' owner. "They are small especially in light of the extra-large investments most franchises represent."

"Frankly," said Clint Murchison Jr., Dallas Cowboys' owner, "I am not exactly sure why I own a team: my brother thinks I'm nuts."

These are some of the responses to a questionnaire sent by Newspaper Enterprise to AFL/NFL club owners. Two questions were posed: (1) Does it pay to own a professional football team? (2) Why do you own a football team?

Most agree that owning a pro football club is not particularly remunerative, especially in comparison to other investments. "Very rewarding in many ways," said Wellington Mara of the New York Giants. "However, at present cost of franchises, money could be invested in many other ways to bring a better rate of return than in pro football."

Joseph Robbie of the Miami Dolphins concurred, but added: "It must be recognized that the satisfaction of being engaged in professional football is one of the greatest returns on this investment."

Art Rooney of the Pittsburgh Steelers said that owning a pro football franchise does pay now. "But there were leaner days," he said. "Max Winter of the Minnesota Vikings said, 'Yes, it does pay to own a team in pro football. Financially we have had some very successful seasons. We bought our franchise for $600,000 and our return on our investment has been very good. Had we paid nine or 10 million for same, I doubt that this would hold true in the average franchise.'"

"No," said Allan Phipps, "the operation of the Denver Broncos will never generate a 'pay' proposition in the generally accepted business sense of the term. It's certainly not the type of investment that can be recommended either for widows or orphans..."

So, if there are greener fields elsewhere, why do these men remain in pro football? "It's a family business," said Mara. "I greatly enjoy the challenge presented to attract spectators," said Lamar Hunt, owner of the Kansas City Chiefs.

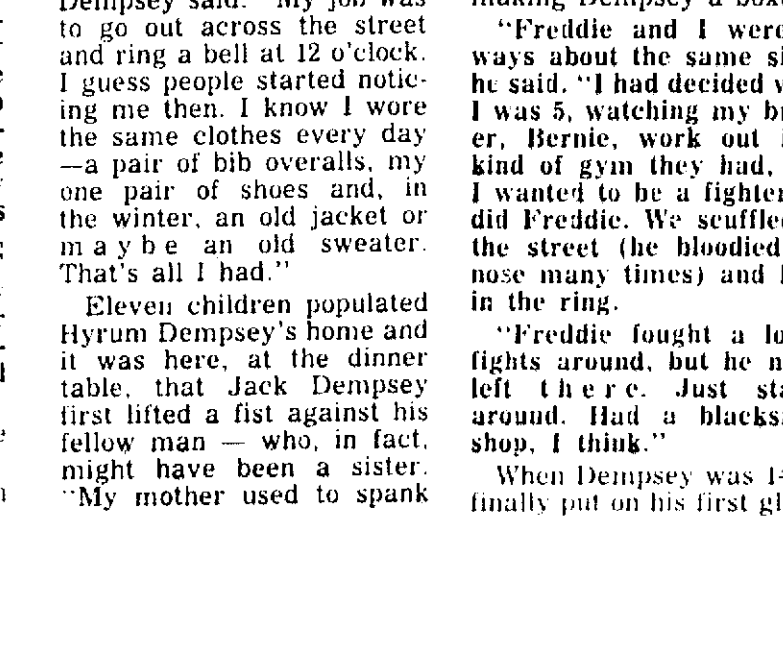

"It's a rewarding experience from the standpoints of helping preserve a well-rounded community, and possibly of contributing to its future image," said Denver's Phipps. "Football is an exciting and fun way to live," said Cincinnati's Paul Brown. "That is why I came back into it. I did not return for financial reasons."

"Football," said Detroit Lions owner William Clay Ford, "provides all the vicarious aspects of competition—from running a sound management to fielding a winning team."

"In addition," said Billy Sullivan of the Boston Patriots, "our team, like others, has afforded fine job opportunities to many who otherwise might not have had them."

It was Rooney, though, who probably summed it up for all the owners. "I suppose," he said, "that the most direct and honest answer is simply: I love the game."

in Montrose's Elk Club. "There were heavy, six or seven ounces," he says. "I went four rounds with a kid named Ted Woods. I don't know if he was a relation of Freddie's or not. Nobody won."

"After that, I fought everywhere—bars, dance halls, you name it. The technique was pretty simple. You just walked into a place and challenged anybody in the house—man or boy—to a fight."

us a lot for fighting at the table," he said.

The Dempseys knew Montrose well. "We moved around," he said, "always renting because it was cheap—$10 or $15 a month."

Wherever Jack Dempsey moved, however, Freddie Woods found him and vice versa. There was always Freddie Woods. Every boy has a mortal enemy (and sometimes friend), and Freddie Woods was as responsible as any man for making Dempsey a boxer.

"Freddie and I were always about the same size," he said. "I had decided when I was 5, watching my brother, Bernie, work out in a kind of gym they had, that I wanted to be a fighter. So did Freddie. We scuffled on the street (he bloodied my nose many times) and later in the ring."

"Freddie fought a lot of fights around, but he never left there. Just stayed around. Had a blacksmith shop, I think."

Nixon Welfare Plan Adds $4 Billion a Year

By G. C. THELEN Jr.
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon wants a "New Federalism" that will ship tax dollars and job programs out of Washington but nationalize the welfare system and give every poor family a basic income.

The heart of the President's domestic proposals, announced in his broadcast Friday night, is a federal income guarantee of $1,600 a year to a family of four, plus supplements until earnings reach $3,920—provided the breadwinner is willing to work.

His new "family assistance program" and other reforms would supplant the present aid to dependent children program, subsidize the working poor for the first time and add $4 billion a year to the present $4.2 billion federal welfare bill. Welfare recipients would more than double to 22.4 million.

The President called for gradual assignment of the $1 billion-a-year federal manpower program to state and local governments. Some $660 million more would be added to expand job training for welfare recipients and offer day-care centers for their children.

State and local governments would also share $1 billion a year in federal revenues with few strings attached, beginning in 1971.

Republican leaders in Congress generally applauded the President's program. But action on the welfare reforms may be a year or two away, they cautioned, and revenue sharing is sure to face rough going.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills of the House Ways and Means Committee is one important Democrat who doubts Congress will shovel out money with few controls. His committee will consider the revenue sharing proposal, which House Republican leader Gerald R. Ford said could amount to $5 billion a year by 1975.

The President advocated federal payments of $65 a month for recipients of three adult welfare programs—aid to the blind, disabled and aged. The government now has a sliding scale of matching payments for the programs.

Nixon also announced executive reorganization of the anti-poverty agency for a new emphasis on experimental job programs rather than operation of proven ones.

Prisoners Return Thin But Happy

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Three American servicemen released from North Vietnamese prison camps have returned home—pale and thin but with wide smiles that conveyed their emotions better than words.

Lt. Robert Frishman, a Navy pilot who acted as spokesman for the three, and Navy Seaman Douglas Hegdahl were both beaming during a brief news conference after their arrival Thursday at Kennedy Airport.

The third American, Air Force Capt. Wesley Rumble, 23, of Oroville, Calif., was too ill to talk to newsmen and was escorted down the plane steps and helped into a car.

The three were accompanied by seven American war protesters who had brought them from Hanoi.

Frishman, 28, of Santee, Calif., told newsmen that his health was "pretty good" although he had lost 45 pounds since he was shot down near Hanoi Oct. 24, 1967.

"I took a look at myself in a long mirror the other day and I feel I look like hell," he said.

Frishman said his right arm had been "seriously wounded" and North Vietnamese doctors removed the elbow and fused the bones. He said the skin took six months to heal.

Hegdahl, 22, of Watertown, S.D., said only, "I am very glad to be back in the United States. I feel great." He was captured after falling overboard from the cruiser USS Canberra April 6, 1967.

Frishman refused to answer questions about the welfare of other prisoners in North Vietnam, apparently fearful of jeopardizing their possible release.

Air Raids Heaviest in Weeks

By GEORGE ESPEY
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — The heaviest U.S. B52 air raids in five weeks along the Cambodian border north of Saigon today apparently flushed out more than 100 North Vietnamese troops and sent them into a hail of American bullets, rockets, artillery and bombs.

The U.S. Command said at least 33 of the North Vietnamese soldiers were killed and six others captured. There were no American casualties, a spokesman said.

Overnight, ten waves of B52 bombers numbering up to 50 planes dropped bombs on enemy bases 64 to 76 miles north of Saigon.

Apparently trying to escape the bombers, the North Vietnamese troops began moving.

Headquarters also reported an exchange of artillery fire across the demilitarized zone overnight after some of the heaviest fighting there in more than two months.

But U.S. military officers said today there was no unusual enemy troop building up the area. They reported two Americans killed and 10 wounded in the firing near Gio Linh, south of the zone.

Three flights swirled Thursday within a 10-mile area ranging from 100 to 220 yards inside the DMZ to three miles south of the zone's central section. Eighty-two North Vietnamese soldiers and eight Americans were reported killed and 24 Americans wounded.

The B52 raids on the Cambodian border indicated concern over possible enemy troop movements as the eight-week lull in sustained ground action appeared to be entering a more active phase.

U.S. intelligence officers said the B52 strikes were aimed at the North Vietnamese 7th Division, which threatens An Loc, Loc Ninh and another provincial capital, Song Be, and the Viet Cong 5th Division.

There were some intelligence reports that the Communist command is planning a new round of attacks against these towns later this month or in early September. Intelligence officers say the Communists want to seize them and establish provincial revolutionary governments to claim at least a psychological victory.

Negroes Still Picketing at Little Rock

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Negroes continued to picket the Police and Courts Building here Thursday as four Negroes testified at a Civil Service Commission hearing that they saw a policeman strike a 13-year-old Negro girl.

The commission was expected to issue a statement late today on the two-day hearing on charges of police brutality in the handling of the girl, Margaret Trimble, who was described as mentally retarded.

Mrs. Hattie Jones, Mrs. Irene Briggs and Ellis Abraham testified that a policeman slapped Miss Trimble as two officers were trying to get her into a police car. Mrs. Hattie Williams testified that a policeman hit Miss Trimble with his fist and choked her.

Witnesses said Wednesday the girl was picked up by Patrolmen Lester S. Hall and Ivan Jones at the request of an Economic Opportunity Agency worker, who had been assigned to find a temporary residence for the girl because her mother was out of town.

Hall testified Wednesday that he pushed Miss Trimble's head away from his shoulder after she had bit him. He denied that he hit or slapped her.

The four witnesses Thursday said they had watched the incident from the front porches of their homes or were nearby.

In About One of Two Highway Deaths the Blame Is on Alcohol

By MARY ANITA LASETER
Star Feature Writer

A killer is loose in our streets. Last year, he killed 25,000 Americans. This year he will kill more. He kills day and night, week in and week out, and he will go on killing until he is stopped.

The killer's name: John Barleycorn. The murder weapon: the automobile.

In approximately one out of every two highway deaths, alcohol is implicated. This fact is confirmed in report after report pointing to alcohol as the largest single factor leading to fatal auto crashes.

But contrary to popular misconception, the villain is not the moderate, social drinker who drives after one or two drinks—in other words, the average citizen. He is the abnormal, pathological drinker; the chronic alcoholic; the "problem" drinker who habitually drinks to excess, and who does not have control over his drinking.

In other words, the problem is not drivers who drink, but drunks who drive.

Detailed research by the Department of Transportation has resulted in a number of revealing facts. Every competent investigation has demonstrated that the immoderate use of alcohol is a very major cause of highway crashes, especially of those most violent. The problem is primarily one of persons, predominantly men, who have been drinking heavily.

also frequently involve hazardous amounts of alcohol.

One to four per cent of drivers on the road are accounting for about 50-55 per cent of all single vehicle crashes in which drivers are fatally injured. Of greater seriousness is the realization that 44 per cent of the innocent not at fault dead drivers were killed by drinking drivers, and we mustn't forget the great numbers of passengers killed in these wrecks.

When do drunk drivers do their killing? The answer to that is easy—in the hours when they do their drinking. That is why they are far more likely to occur from 9 p.m. until midnight than during the morning rush hours. It may come as a surprise that weekends are not as extra-hazardous as might be assumed from the increased amount of general drinking done then. The explanation for this lies in the fact that the alcoholic, the chronic heavy drinker who has been found to be the big crash-causer, does not show any special favoritism for weekends, but does his drinking on any and every day of the week impartially.

What can be done about this menacing problem? First, there is the need for a massive attack on alcoholism as such, not merely in its connection with highway safety. Included would be a huge increase in the number of state and local alcoholism programs, and perhaps the launching of a federal alcohol program.

The educational approach, so far, would seem to be the most promising. And, from the Department of Transportation's findings, the starting point would appear to be public recognition of the real highway menace—the "problem" drinker who drives.

The Park Service has recommended a park covering 97,730 acres in Newton, Searcy, Marion and Baxter counties and spending amounting to $9.2 million for site acquisition and $8.2 million for development.

The bill would create the park and set up acreage and an authorization ceiling for expenditures.

Mohawk Indian Chosen Head of Indian Affairs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The search for a new commissioner of Indian affairs took the Nixon administration to a village in New York where Agwellius of the Mohawk tribe was picked for the job.

Agwellius, translated "Swift," also bears the name Louis R. Bruce. The village is Greenwich on the island of Manhattan, which the Indians lost to a fast-dealing paleface 343 years ago.

It took six months for the administration to choose the new commissioner.

"I'm a lifelong Republican," Bruce said. "I would say I'm one of the few American Indian Republicans, judging by the length of time it took to pick a commissioner."

The Democrats set a precedent when former President Lyndon B. Johnson named Robert L. Bennett, an Oneida Indian, as commissioner.

Secretary of the Interior Walter J. Hickel said he and his deputies interviewed among others a Sioux from South Dakota, two Navajos from Arizona, a Mesquero Apache and a Pueblo from New Mexico, a Choctaw, a Kiowa and a Chickasaw from Oklahoma and an Indian from Hikel's own Alaska.

Most of them were Democrats.

Buffalo River Park Bill Is Advanced

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Interior Committee Thursday approved the Buffalo River National Park bill, which now goes to the floor of the Senate for consideration.

The bill would create the park and set up acreage and an authorization ceiling for expenditures.

Patrols Are Planned by State Police

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — State Police placed operation "Round Robin" into effect this morning. The program is designed so that motorists will be no more than 20 minutes from a patrol car on five major highways. State Police cars will be spaced 20 minutes apart on the highways.

The operation will be used on highways between Little Rock and Clarksville, Newport, Forrest City, Hope and McGehee. State Police Director Ralph D. Scott said today's plan is on a trial basis.

Bruton to Be Arraigned in Little Rock

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge J. Smith Henley refused Thursday to let Jim Bruton be arraigned at Pine Bluff on 19 counts in an indictment charging him with brutality to prisoners.

The judge held that the former Tucker Prison Farm superintendent will be arraigned in Little Rock next Tuesday.

Bruton's attorney, R. A. Elliott of Pine Bluff, had asked that the arraignment be in Pine Bluff because most of Bruton's defense witnesses live in that area.

Hope's No. 2 Country Club Gets Drink OK

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The state Alcoholic Beverage Control Board Thursday granted mixed drink permits to Mrs. Miller's Chicken and Steak House, Cliff's Supper Club and La Casa restaurant, all in Hot Springs.

The board also approved mixed drink permits for four private clubs—the Grand Prairie Country Club at Hazen, the Monticello Country Club, the Lakeside Club at West Memphis and Country Club No. 2 at Hope.

Wants $10,811 in Sirhan Case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A psychiatrist who examined Sirhan Bishara Sirhan and testified at his murder trial wants $10,811 for his services.

Los Angeles County Supervisor Kenneth Hahn said Wednesday Dr. Seymour Pollack had submitted a bill for that amount, charging for time spent in the courtroom, in conferences, reading transcripts and reviewing psychological tests.
